The advantages of Virtual Meetings

- A virtual meeting:
 - Reduces costs
 - Saves time
 - Involves your entire team
 - It is environmentally friendly

The disadvantages of Virtual Meetings

- It is not recommended to hold a virtual meeting for a serious matter:
 - You cannot “see” the emotions of the attendees.
 - Technology needed requires a little time to install & get familiar/comfortable with.
 - Unless you have all the necessary equipment you cannot exchange information and thus actively participate.
 - The virtual meeting is less personal and less social than meeting in person.
 - You might find technical difficulties with the connection.

Physical meetings - Advantages

- They convey:
 - Emotions
 - Feelings
 - Body language
 - Tone of voice
 - Face to face communication
 - “Human” connection & relationship-building
 - Brainstorming

Physical meetings- Disadvantages

- Different types of costs involved:
 - Meeting room and equipment rental.
 - Food and beverages during the meeting.
 - Sometimes it involves accommodation of the attendees.
 - It involves travelling time of the attendees.

Types of meetings in terms of attendance

- Team Meeting:
 - Team Meeting keeps members informed and provide a forum for problem solving, decision-making, innovation or empowerment.
- Board of Director Meeting:
 - Is a good forum for the strategic development of a firm. Members of the board or directors of the company attend this type of meeting although some times other stakeholders are being invited.
- Customer Meeting:
 - Provides us with an opportunity to understand the factors that bring customers to us as well as to identify ways for improvement. They are a vital tool if a company wants to adopt a customer-oriented approach.

Types of meetings in terms of attendance

- Meeting with external stakeholder:

- External stakeholder can be the government/suppliers, etc. These types of meetings usually take place to review a cooperation or the progress of a project.

- Presentation Meeting:

- The distinctive part of this meeting is the fact that one person in the meeting has the role of the presenter, that is he/she has a presentation to make that relates to a specific topic. The presentation could be:
 - promotional (that is to promote a product of a service),
 - presentation of the results of a project or
 - even a presentation of the progress of a project.

The Preparation of the meeting

- The role of the person who is responsible for the preparation of the meeting is extremely significant:
 - For the meeting to be successful, that is to produce the expected results.
 - For the meeting to be within the budget.
 - For the promotion of the general image of our company.
 - A well organised meeting reflects a well organised company

- Ensure that everything is up to standard, ensuring thus the effectiveness of the meeting.
 - Try to figure out its significance:
 - For you!
 - For the organization as well.
 - For all the other parts involved.

The three phases of a meeting

1. PREPARATION (BEFORE):

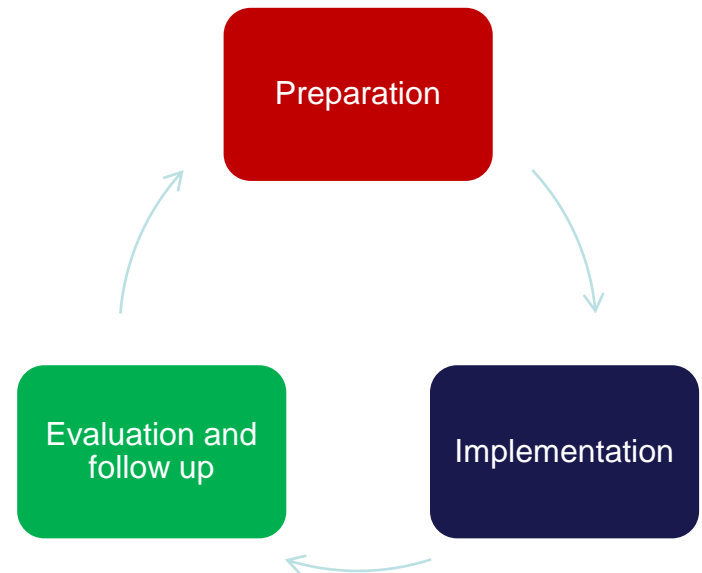

1. Before the meeting

2. IMPLEMENTATION (DURING):

1. During the meeting

3. EVALUATION AND FOLLOW UP (THE FUTURE):

1. Meeting evaluation
2. Actions resulting from the meeting

In depth understanding of the meeting

1. Understand the purpose, form and type of the meeting:

1. Through questioning the meeting organiser and active listening:
 1. Start with open-ended questions to get most of the information.
 2. Continue with specific 'closed' questions to get the details.
 1. What is the meeting all about?
 2. So what are the topics in the agenda?
 3. Are there any presentations?
 4. Who will facilitate the meeting?
 5. What is the estimated duration of the meeting?
 6. And so on

- The purpose of the meeting:
 - Note that you cannot organise a meeting unless you know what the meeting is all about.
- The type of the meeting:
 - Board of directors meeting.
 - Customer presentation.
 - Team meeting.
 - Project progress meeting.
- Form of the meeting:
 - Formal or informal.

Start with the development of a meeting checklist

- Advantages:

- It will help you to organise the meeting and to ensure that there are no pending issues.
- You do not need to remember issues or their progress since everything is being noted.

- Related to participants:

- Send agenda and details of meeting (place, time, duration) to participants.

- After the end of the meeting:

- Prepare evaluation report.
- Send evaluation report to manager.

Scheduling of the meeting

1. Schedule the meeting:

1. In coordination with the organiser.
2. Taking into account the availability of key meeting attendees (probably confirm their availability through a telephone conversation and ask them to provisionally book the date and time).
3. Take into account the meeting duration.
4. Ensure that no other big event is scheduled on the same day as this might affect the availability of your attendees and thus the meetings success.

Common problems when scheduling a meeting

- After everyone has been invited, some important participants cannot come:
 - It is a good idea to get a positive response from the key participants before proceeding with the rest of the invitations.
 - However, this may still occur and another date will have to be found. This can lead to a cycle of invitations and revisions.
- Several attendees forget about the meeting:
 - This is often the case when the meeting was scheduled well in advance. Need to send reminder.

Common problems when scheduling a meeting

- Repeated meeting notices are send out:
 - In the end everyone is confused about the meeting.
- The purpose of the meeting was not clear to everybody:
 - So they show up unprepared.
- Finding a convenient time & place is hard even when you know where everyone is going to be and what their calendar looks like.

• Meeting agenda

- The meeting agenda is a roadmap for the meeting. It lets participants know where they are headed so they do not get off track. Most importantly, the meeting agenda gives a sense of purpose and direction to the meeting. All agendas should list the following:
 - Meeting start time
 - Meeting end time
 - Meeting location
 - Topic headings
 - Include some topic detail for each heading.
 - Indicate the time each topic is expected to last.
 - Indicate which meeting participants are expected to be the main topic participants.

- Pay attention to the topics of the agenda:
 - Use details and action words e.g:
 - Decide whether we need a bigger or smaller advertising budget for the next period.
 - Advantages:
 - The discussion is focused.
 - The attendees can get prepared to discuss.
- Create a first draft version of meeting agenda, to be reviewed by the meeting chair.
- Attach the minutes of the previous meeting (if there has been one):
 - This gives members the chance to bring up anything they do not understand or disagree with.

- Confirm the budget with your supervisor.
- Ensure a 'value for money' meeting:
 - Request tenders before you proceed to bookings (room and equipment rental, catering etc).
 - Confirm attendance before making any bookings.
 - Last minute cancellations may result to penalties.

- Call the meeting to order:
 - Confirm with the meeting coordinator if he/she expects you to do this or if he/she will handle this task. This means the chairperson asks everyone to stop talking as the meeting is about to begin.
- Ensure that everybody signs the attendance sheet.
- Respect the requirements of the attendees and respond to them as much as possible:
 - Requirements may include extra water, change of temperature in the room, different beverages than those provided and so on.

- When we are dealing with live situations, something may get out of control for a while and this is natural:
 - Our mission is to ensure everyone stays calm and we can learn from our mistakes.
- The best method to learn from our mistakes is to:
 - Get feedback:
 - From our colleagues
 - From the attendees
 - See them as an opportunity to improve a future performance.

POST-MEETING ACTIONS - A thank you letter

- Write a thank you letter:

Dear All,

A short note to thank you for an excellent meeting. Our meeting was indeed very productive and we are now very proud of the result. It was also great to see you and I hope you have enjoyed the meeting as much as we did.

Prepare a short evaluation report

- It is pointless to have evaluation forms if you cannot improve your meetings:
 - An evaluation report enables you to have an overall idea of the perceptions of the participants on the effectiveness of your meeting.
 - It also empowers your image as a person that values and cares for quality.

Meeting Minutes or Meeting Notes?

- The two are the same:
 - Minutes is a more traditional term.
- The minutes should be:
 - Brief otherwise people will not read them.
 - But they must still be precise and clear.

- It is a good idea to sit as close as possible to the Chair of the meeting. This will allow you to hear everything and to ask for clarification without having to raise your voice.
- Make note not only of the concerns, but also of any accomplishments discussed in the meeting.
- Write things as they happen. If someone brings up a topic early in the meeting and someone else brings up the same topic later, do not group these things together.
- Make sure you have the correct name spellings, contact email addresses, and telephone numbers.
- Minutes are very important. They are saved and might be referred to for years and years to come. If it is a legal matter, for example, someone's reputation may depend on it.

- Keep the minutes filed in a safe place.
- Even though you are taking notes.
- Ask people to write down their emotions. This will save you the headache of trying to paraphrase someone else's ideas.
- Consider learning shorthand or using a laptop. This will help you record the minutes in a timely and accurate fashion.
- Do not be afraid to interrupt and ask for clarification at any time.
- Type up your minutes immediately after the meeting ends. It is best to do this while the events are still fresh in your mind. It is also important that participants get a copy of their action items as soon as possible after the meeting.
- When you finish, have it reviewed by the meeting chair.
